

About Domestic Helper Insurance

What is Domestic Helper Insurance?

By law in Hong Kong, all employers must provide employees' compensation insurance coverage for their employees, which covers employers' liability should their helper fall ill or incur an injury while working. The insurance should be in place by the time the two year contract with your helper commences (visa release date for helpers processing in Hong Kong and arrival date to Hong Kong for helpers processing overseas).

There are many options for helper insurance in Hong Kong, and each insurance company's policies differ slightly. While some employers choose to obtain only employees' compensation insurance for their domestic helpers, others choose more extensive plans that will provide more protection. We recommend comparing helper insurance policies between companies in order to find the policy which best fits your needs and budget. We do not recommend any policy in particular. Please find, for reference only, a comparison chart of helper insurance policies on the following page. Please contact the insurance companies directly for the most updated prices and coverage.

The minimum insurance cover when taking out employees' compensation insurance (for fewer than 200 employees) is $100,000,000/event. The least expensive and most basic forms of helper insurance provide this minimum requirement. More extensive helper insurance plans can cover, in addition to the government minimum requirement, benefits such as:

- Health insurance
- Repatriation expenses
- Personal accident insurance
- Fidelity coverage
- Dental insurance
- Replacement expenses
- Temporary worker subsidy
